(DAYTONA BEACH, FL – August 23, 2021) – Shelley Stewart, President/CEO of Southern Title Holding Company, LLC, joins an esteemed roster of speakers at the 17th annual National Settlement Service Summit in Naples, Florida from August 31 to September 2.

The National Settlement Services Summit (NS3) is the premier annual destination for all professionals involved in the real estate transaction to come together for unrivaled networking and education. The 800+ attendees at this year's event will hear from industry executives, innovators, and leaders addressing the latest market trends and strategies for success in a rapidly changing world. Former CFPB Director Kathy Kraninger, HomeServices of America CEO Gino Blefari, and Freedom Mortgage Founder Stanley C. Middleman headline the plethora of presenters. Representatives from the Secret Service and FBI will address cybersecurity, privacy, and fraud while state and federal regulators share insights into the latest privacy and security protections impacting public records.

On day 3 of the summit, Stewart will share the main stage with two national underwriters in a roundtable discussion on claims and how to prevent them. In addition, she is one of four senior executives hosting the event's popular Women in Business Breakfast.

"It's an honor to be part of this amazing event and to have the opportunity to network with the top executives and industry leaders," said Stewart. "I look forward to our panel discussions and interacting with the audience on these vital concerns affecting the real estate closing process."

Well known throughout the title industry as a leader and staunch advocate for title agents, Stewart brings more than 40 years' experience in title agency operations to her presentation. She is a past president of the Florida Land Title Association and most recently, Senator Kathleen Passidomo (R-28) selected Stewart to chair a taskforce subgroup of stakeholders created to research the impact of the state's Public Records Redaction legislation.
